Men's Health Awareness

Generally speaking, men are at a greater risk for a handful of health conditions. Heart disease, stroke, depression, lung cancer and prostate cancer are at the top the list. Knowing the risk factors of each of these conditions can help you understand your overall risk — and maybe encourage some lifestyle changes or a visit to your doctor.

Did You Know?

- Men are 24 percent less likely than women to have visited a doctor within the past year and are 22 percent more likely to have neglected their cholesterol tests.
- Men are 28 percent more likely than women to be hospitalized for congestive heart failure.
- Men are 32 percent more likely than women to be hospitalized for long-term complications of diabetes.
- Men are 24 percent more likely than women to be hospitalized for pneumonia that could have been prevented by getting an immunization.

The single most important way you can take care of yourself and those you love is to actively take part in your health care. Educate yourself on health care and participate in decisions with your doctor.
