Our Process

Strategic planning at Arkansas Northeastern College (ANC) is a collaborative and continuous process that sets the future direction for the College. It is guided by the College’s vision, mission, values, and student learning outcomes. ANC’s strategic planning process ensures the long-term viability of the College for its students and community and ensures the effective and efficient use of its resources. ANC adopted a five-phase approach to create a shared future vision and strategic operational goals for the institution. This collaborative planning process depends on five guiding principles for success. These principles are meaningful engagement of internal stakeholders, transparency, an internally-directed process, attention to external issues and trends in higher education, and the meaningful engagement of external stakeholders.

The five phases included in this approach are:

Phase I: Getting Organized. ANC’s President, Dr. James Shemwell, directed this first phase in which a Strategic Planning Task Force (PTF) was established, the resources necessary to support the process were committed, and the importance of the planning effort was communicated.

Phase II: Data Gathering and Engagement. The PTF sought input to inform the planning and future direction for the College from multiple stakeholder groups using a variety of methods. Stakeholder groups included ANC employees and students; ANC alumni; area school districts personnel, students, and parents; employers; civic groups; media outlets; clergy; chambers of commerce; and local city and county government officials. Contact was made with over 1,200 stakeholders through face-to-face interactions in large groups, small groups, focus groups, one-on-one interviews, and through written and online surveys.

Phase III: Making Sense of the Issues. Members of the PTF compiled the data gathered in Phase II, processed the information by considering and sorting the data, saw the patterns that emerged and identified the dominant themes. Each member of the PTF was assigned to a team. Each team was responsible for writing a concept paper on one of the themes. The purpose of these concept papers was to inform and educate stakeholders who might have little knowledge or expertise about the themes.

Phase IV: Vision Conference. A combination of both internal and external stakeholders participated in a highly interactive one-day conference in which stakeholders discussed the concept papers written by the PTF and created a “preferred future” for ANC based on the dominant themes. The “preferred future” became the foundation for the development of strategic operational goals.

Phase V: Goals Conference. With input from key stakeholders, the PTF created six operational goals which form the basis for an action plan and a detailed implementation plan.
